Conducted by
EXAMBEEES

A Sample Beginners level question

Write a letter to the editor of a daily newspaper highlighting difficulties faced by disabled sections in our country and suggest how we can alleviate their situations. (250 words) [WBCS exam questions have word limits of 150 to 200 words]

Understanding question: Read each question more than once. It is always worth. Look for what exactly the question is asking. This particular question is a more general one. The asking word "difficulties" is a broad term. It includes social, economic, and political injustices. In this sense it is not an example of a twisted question. When a question has a specific asking component, we should be careful while answering.

Rough work: Do not start writing immediately. Reserve the last page for rough work. Give five minutes per question to organize your thoughts, jot down few points on which you want to expand your thoughts. Also try to look for few relevant keywords that you want to include.

For this test: Do not look at the hints right away. Muscle your brain first.

Hints: Do we have infrastructures friendly toward disabled persons? Think about office buildings, schools, colleges, and hospitals. What kind of day-to-day adversities they have to face. How our society has outcast disabled people (humiliations). Our society's attitude toward disabled persons. Are developmental programs inclusive? Think about our education system, do we teach enough civic values to our children. How could we create job opportunities and give them their economic rights and empower them. Why they are begging? Is there any constitutional bill to safeguard their rights?

Keywords: insensitive, marginalized section/minority, humiliations, economic disparity, social discriminations/injustice, medical rights, social stigma, denied economic opportunity, our support system, compassion, humanity, economic hardships, widening gap, economic rights.
